Prepare a Counter Offer
Hello HR Manager,

It is great hearing back from you. I hope that everything is well.

Thank you for sending me this offer. I am excited about the opportunity to work at XYZ company. I would like to discuss a few aspects of the offer that I would like to modify.

I believe I am a good fit for this position and will be able to add value to the ABC team from day one. I’ve demonstrated a strong understanding of engineering principles by passing the Fundamentals of Engineering certification exam and by maintaining a 3.65 GPA. I’ve utilized these principles to design the C/C++ embedded software and hardware for printed circuit boards (PCB) using Altium Designer during my experience as an engineer in the Society of Automotive Engineers. As a software intern for the 123 Company, I improved data collection and analysis efficiency by programming Python scripts.

It is for these reasons that I would like to propose a counter offer. The current offer is for a starting salary of $72,009. I would like to propose a starting salary of $78,750 annually based on the average salary for this position reported by salary.com. Additionally, I would like to discuss the possibility of using the educational assistance benefit to pay for my remaining tuition expenses for my senior year of undergraduate education, as well as the paying back student loans.

Thank you,

Student

Be open with employers when given one offer and in the interview process for another position
Reneging on an Acceptance

What is it?
Going back on a promise or commitment.

Why avoid it?
It damages your reputation, and potentially UCR’s.

What if I need to?
There are situations where it is acceptable – seek help from your Career Specialist to navigate this conversation.

Bottom line: You should never accept one offer with the intention of reneging if a better opportunity comes along.
